

Name: _____

Sign Language

How can deaf people communicate?

Deaf people are unable to hear noises, so when people talk, they cannot hear them. They have adapted to this disability by using sign language to communicate. Sign language is the use of hands and arms to speak.

Different hand movements can represent different words. Some words that don't have a hand movement are spelled out using the alphabet in sign language, such as names and places.

1. Identify how the author's purpose is mostly conveyed.

answer a question describe something explain something

2. What is the author's purpose for writing this text?

3. Identify what sign language is.